1. SUMMARY

The UN Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights published its Lists of Issues and Concluding Observations as a result of the 63rd Session (12 to 29 March 2018) and the 62nd Pre-Sessional Working Group (3 to 6 April 2018).

Questions on LGBTI issues were sent to 4 out of 5 other countries (Cameroon, Kazakhstan, Mauritius, and Slovakia – having Estonia as the only country without SOGIESC-related questions), and SOGIESC recommendations were made for 2 (Bangladesh and Mexico) out of 6 countries reviewed.

Both questions and recommendations were almost always pertaining the right to equality and/or non-discrimination, without further specification. One set of questions was made in more detail, including the right to work, and to physical and mental health (Kazakhstan).

While the non-discrimination recommendations would sometimes encompass the decriminalization of same-sex relations between adults, no stand-alone recommendations were made on LB women and TI persons. The Committee consistently referred to SOGI and LGBT persons, but intersex or sex characteristics were mentioned by the Committee only once in its Concluding Observations on Mexico (a general recommendation concerning discrimination against LGBTI persons).

1.1. Concluding Observations

During its 63rd Session, the Committee reviewed periodic reports of Bangladesh, Central African Republic, Mexico, New Zealand, Niger and Spain.

SOGIESC recommendations were made for two countries. In both cases, LGBTI issues were addressed in civil society submissions, but the recommendations fell short in considering all the concerns raised by local defenders. The constructive dialogues between the Committee and State delegations also did not expand itself enough as to include all the points brought up by the civil society. For Bangladesh, the Committee wrote its first recommendations already including SOGIESC recommendations.

*Concluding Observations  List of Issues  According to the press releases  *Civil Society Submissions

Bangladesh

The country had its first review during this CESC Session, and already had SOGIESC related topics included in its recommendations. Civil society has made strong contributions on the topic via its submissions to the Committee.

The constructive dialogue included explicit mentions to SOGIESC topics, and more specifically addressed the colonial roots of same-sex criminalization. Still according to the dialogues, Hijra and other LGBTI individuals enjoy full protection in the country, especially in the health system.
The Committee expressed its concern towards the criminalization of same-sex relations in the country. It has stressed that although it praises the recognition of Hijras, this does not exempt the country from working towards the decriminalization of same-sex relations. Notably, a recommendation in para 24 was included by the Committee into the follow-up list. That means that the State party has to provide, within 18 months of the adoption of the Concluding Observations, information on the implementation of this recommendation.

Mexico

Mexico has had mentions to SOGIESC topics in previous recommendations. Nonetheless, it has not had specific mentions to these matters in its List of Issues. Civil society made targeted contributions to the discussion by presenting reports that addressed specific topics, such as social security, health and the disproportionate effect of violence on members of vulnerable groups.

The constructive dialogue indicated a broad understanding of LGBTI issues, with Mexico recalling its campaign against homophobia and transphobia initiated in 2005. Moreover, it was also acknowledged that Mexico’s President has chaired a meeting with the civil society to address the discrimination faced by LGBTI individuals. It was also noted that some states have adopted the legal recognition of gender self-identification.

The Committee expressed its concern about the lack of legislative harmonization in the country, creating difficulties for an adequate protection of vulnerable groups. In this regard, the Committee has recommended the country to double its efforts in preventing and combating discrimination against vulnerable groups, including LGBTI individuals.

1.2. Lists of Issues

As a result of its 62nd Pre-Sessional Working Group, the Committee produced a set of questions for the States that will be reviewed in the future. While for Estonia there were no specific questions on SOGIESC, the Committee did ask Cameroon, Kazakhstan, Mauritius, and Slovakia about the situation of LGBTI discrimination and same-sex relations criminalization in these countries.

The Committee also specifically requested Kazakhstan to provide updated statistical data and information on the State’s work to increase employment among disadvantaged and marginalized groups and individuals (including LGBT persons), as well as data and information on the access of LGBTI individuals to health-care services. However, no specific mentions to LB women was made notwithstanding the fact that Feminita group submitted a stand-alone report on the issue and participated in an NGO briefing in Geneva. Nor any particular questions has been asked by the Committee regarding trans or intersex persons.

Six countries will be reviewed by the Committee during its 64th Session that will take place in Geneva from 24 September to 12 October 2018. Civil society groups are invited to submit their shadow reports to the Committee by 31 August 2018. Five other countries will receive LOI/PR from the Committee as a result of the 63rd PSWG (15 to 19 October 2018), and civil society groups may submit their reports to CESCR by 17 August 2018 (tbc).

Please note that the countries involved in the 62nd PSWG will not be analysed then, but in a future session with dates yet to be announced (most likely in March 2019).
2. COMPILATION OF CONCLUDING OBSERVATIONS

Bangladesh – Concluding Observations – 63rd Session, 18 April 2018, initial report

Non-discrimination

23. The Committee is concerned that article 28 of the Constitution prohibits discrimination only on limited grounds, and that the State party has delayed the adoption of comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation. While welcoming the legal recognition of hijras, it remains concerned that same-sex relations between consenting adults are criminalized (art. 2 (2)).

24. The Committee recommends that the State party expedite the adoption of comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation that prohibits direct, indirect and multiple forms of discrimination on an open list of grounds and that provides for effective remedies for victims of discrimination, including in judicial and administrative proceedings. It also recommends that the State party decriminalize same-sex relations between consenting adults and take the measures necessary to raise public awareness regarding, and combat discrimination based on, sexual orientation and gender identity.

D. Other recommendations

77. In accordance with the procedure on follow-up to concluding observations adopted by the Committee, the State party is requested to provide, within 18 months of the adoption of the present concluding observations, information on the implementation of the recommendations contained in paragraphs 24 (adoption of comprehensive anti-discrimination legislation), 28 (Rohingya refugees) and 41 (victimization of trade union activists) above.

Mexico – Concluding Observations – 63rd Session, 17 April 2018, 5th and 6th periodic reports

Discrimination

18. Although the Committee takes note of the existence of a federal law on the prevention of discrimination and the fact that the 32 federative entities also have anti-discrimination legislation, it is concerned that the lack of legislative harmonization makes it impossible to provide adequate and equal protection against the types of discrimination prohibited under the Covenant. It is also concerned at the persistent discrimination faced by specific groups and the fact that there are no appropriate policies to combat the multiple discrimination faced by certain groups, such as indigenous women with disabilities (art. 2).

19. The Committee recommends that the State party:

(a) Review and harmonize its legislation in order to establish a comprehensive legal framework that guarantees a similar level of protection for all persons in the State party against all the types of discrimination enumerated in article 2 (2) of the Covenant;

(b) Redouble its efforts to prevent and combat persistent discrimination, in particular against members of indigenous peoples, persons of African descent, persons with disabilities, migrants, asylum seekers and refugees, and lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and intersex persons, including by carrying out awareness-raising campaigns, with a view to ensuring the full exercise of the rights recognized in the Covenant, particularly access to employment, social security, health care and education;

(c) Adopt specific policies, in consultation with the affected groups, to combat the multiple discrimination faced by some persons.
